

Join the community of interstitial cystitis and painful bladder syndrome patients holding the manufacturers accountable for vision damages attributed to long term Elmiron use by asserting your personal injury claim.

The manufacturers of Elmiron market their drug as a safe and effective way to treat the symptoms of interstitial cystitis and painful bladder syndrome. However, the reality is that the drug is associated with an increased risk of vision loss, including pigmentary maculopathy and atypical retinopathy. These conditions cause significant changes in users' vision, including loss of vision and difficulties with contrast and lighting. Despite the growing body of medical literature associating vision loss with the drug, the manufacturers have failed to provide an adequate warning to patients at risk for these vision changes.

The Elmiron litigation team at Johnson Becker is experienced at holding pharmaceutical manufacturers responsible for defective products. Over the last decade, Johnson Becker has represented thousands of people across the nation who have been injured following use of the pharmaceutical product. In addition, we were the first firm in the nation to file a lawsuit against the manufacturers of Elmiron.

Each Elmiron lawsuit is dependent on its own unique facts, but our firm continues to investigate each claim. We believe that holding manufacturers responsible for our clients' injuries not only helps our clients, but prevents future injuries by forcing manufacturers to evaluate and improve the safety of their products.
