Join the hundreds of people holding manufacturers accountable for defective and unsafe pressure cookers by asserting your pressure cooker personal injury claim.

Pressure cooker manufacturers market their products as a quick, healthy and safe way to cook. However, the reality is that many of the pressure cookers on the market have serious design flaws that can lead to severe malfunctions. These malfunctions can cause steam and scalding hot liquids and food to explode out of the pressure cooker, burning the user and anyone nearby.

The pressure cooker litigation team at Johnson Becker is experienced at holding manufacturers responsible for defective products. Over the last four years, Johnson Becker has represented over 500 people in more than 40 states who have been burned by exploding pressure cookers. In addition, we have handled pressure cooker cases against virtually all of the major name-brand manufacturers.

Each pressure cooker lawsuit is dependent on its own unique facts, but our firm continues to successfully file lawsuits against the manufacturers of defective pressure cookers and obtain settlements for our clients. We believe that holding manufacturers responsible for our clients' injuries not only helps our clients, but prevents future injuries by forcing manufacturers to evaluate and improve the safety of their products.

What Our Clients Say About Us . . .

“Johnson Becker was so helpful and easy to work with. They were always immediately available to answer my questions and they kept me up to date every step of the way. All the staff were extremely compassionate and professional. If you need a firm to handle your litigation, I highly recommend Johnson Becker.” -Sandy F.

“My experience with Johnson and Becker especially working with Mr Adam and Mr Mike has been beyond explainable. They are an amazing team. Mr Adam has been in touch with me throughout the whole process, never left me wondering. This law firm has worked with me to get the best results and . . . everything they said they would do, they did it. I would highly recommend them to anyone who needs a great law firm.” -Brenika L.

“The service we received from Adam Kress and his team was outstanding. We came away feeling like we had a new friend. Our biggest surprise was that this company not only works on getting money for their clients, they actually care about getting unsafe products off the market. Thanks Johnson and Becker for making us feel like we helped make the world a little safer!” -Ken C.

1 Plaintiff, ROSALINA DRAYTON (hereafter referred to as “Plaintiff”), by and
2 through her undersigned counsel, JOHNSON BECKER, PLLC and HARLAN LAW,
3 P.C., hereby submits the following Complaint and Demand for Jury Trial against
4 Defendant INSTANT BRANDS, INC. (hereafter referred to as “Defendant Instant
5 Brands“ or “Defendant”) alleges the following upon personal knowledge and belief, and 6 investigation of counsel:

7 NATURE OF THE CASE

8 1. Defendant Instant Brands designs, manufactures, markets, imports,
9 distributes and sells a wide-range of consumer kitchen products, including the subject
10 “Instant Pot Programmable Electric Pressure Cooker,” which specifically includes the 11 Model Number IP-DUO60 (referred to hereafter as “pressure cooker(s)”) that is at issue
12 in this case.

13 2. Defendant touts the “safety”¹ of its pressure cookers, and states that they 14 cannot be opened while in use. Despite Defendant’s claims of “safety,” it designed,
15 manufactured, marketed, imported, distributed and sold, both directly and through 16 third-party retailers, a product that suffers from serious and dangerous defects. Said
17 defects cause significant risk of bodily harm and injury to its consumers.

18 3. Specifically, said defects manifest themselves when, despite Defendant’s
19 statements, the lid of the pressure cooker is removable with built-up pressure, heat
20 and steam still inside the unit. When the lid is removed under such circumstances, the 21 pressure trapped within the unit causes the scalding hot contents to be projected from 22 the unit and into the surrounding area, including onto the unsuspecting consumers,
23 its families and other bystanders. The Plaintiff in this case was able to remove the lid
24 while the pressure cooker retained pressure, causing her serious and substantial 25 bodily injuries and damages.

DEFENDANT INSTANT BRANDS, INC.

9. Defendant designs, manufactures, markets, imports, distributes and sell a variety of consumer kitchen products including pressure cookers, air fryers, and blenders, amongst others.

10. Defendant boasts that “[t]he Instant Pot line of products are truly tools for a new lifestyle and especially cater to the needs of health-minded individuals”³ with its “main goal” to provide “best kitchen experience by offering unsurpassed user interface design and connected technologies.”⁴

11. Defendant Instant Brands is a Canadian corporation with is principal place of business at 495 March Road, Suite 200, Kanata, ON, Canada K2K 3G1, and as such is deemed to be a citizen of the Country of Canada.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

12. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this case pursuant to diversity jurisdiction prescribed by 28 U.S.C. § 1332 because the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs, and there is complete diversity between the parties.

13. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391 all or a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to this claim occurred in this district.

14. Venue is also proper in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because Defendant has sufficient minimum contacts with the State of California and has intentionally availed itself of the markets within California through the promotion, sale, marketing, and distribution of its products.

1 FACTUAL BACKGROUND

2 15. Defendant is engaged in the business of designing, manufacturing,
3 warranting, marketing, importing, distributing and selling the pressure cooker at 4 issue in this litigation.

5 16. Defendant aggressively warrants, markets, advertises and sells its 6 pressure cookers as “Convenient, Dependable and Safe,”⁵ allowing consumers to cook
7 “healthy, tasty dishes.”⁶

8 17. For instance, the Defendant claims that its pressure cookers include a 9 “safety feature to disable the cooker” and display light that “flashes ‘Lid’ if the lid is 10 not positioned correctly.”⁷

11 18. To further propagate its message, Defendant has, and continues to utilize 12 numerous media outlets including, but not limited to, infomercials, social media
13 websites such as YouTube, and third-party retailers. For example, the following can 14 be found on Defendant’s YouTube webpage entitled “Getting to Know Your New 15 Instant Pot IP-DUO”:

- 16 a. “The first thing you need to know about your IP-DUO is that you don’t 17 need to be afraid of it, as many people are afraid of stovetop pressure 18 cookers.”⁸
- 19 b. “With 10 safety features built in, you can use your Instant Pot with 20 confidence, knowing that it is not going to explode.”⁹

1 c. “In addition, keep in mind that your Instant Pot operates at relatively low
2 pressures of 11 to 12 psi or lower, depending on the pressure setting that 3 you use.”¹⁰

4 19. In a similar video entitled “Introducing Instant Pot IP-DUO series
5 electric pressure cooker,” spokesperson Laura Pazzaglia, founder of the website “Hip
6 Pressure Cooking”¹¹ boasts of the pressure cookers “10 safety features,”¹² stating that 7 this “new model detects the position of the lid”¹³ and “once the lid is locked, and the 8 contents are under pressure, there’s no way to open the pressure cooker.”¹⁴

9 20. According to the Owner’s Manual accompanying each individual unit
10 sold, the pressure cookers purport to be designed with “10 proven safety mechanisms
11 and patented technologies,”¹⁵ misleading the consumer into believing that the pressure
12 cookers are reasonably safe for its normal, intended use.

13 21. By reason of the forgoing acts or omissions, the above-named Plaintiff
14 and/or her family purchased the pressure cooker with the reasonable expectation that 15 it was properly designed and manufactured, free from defects of any kind, and that it
16 was safe for its intended, foreseeable use of cooking.

17 22. Plaintiff used her pressure cooker for its intended purpose of preparing 18 meals for herself and/or family and did so in a manner that was reasonable and 19 foreseeable by the Defendant.

20 23. However, the aforementioned pressure cooker was defectively and 21 negligently designed and manufactured by the Defendant in that it failed to properly
22 function as to prevent the lid from being removed with normal force while the unit
23

24 ¹⁰ Id. 0:56 – 1:08. This apparently suggests that even if the lid is opened while the unit is still 25 pressurized, it will not harm you.

1 remained pressurized, despite the appearance that all the pressure had been released,
2 during the ordinary, foreseeable and proper use of cooking food with the product;
3 placing the Plaintiff, her family, and similar consumers in danger while using the
4 pressure cookers.

5 24. Defendant's pressure cookers possess defects that make them
6 unreasonably dangerous for their intended use by consumers because the lid can be 7 rotated and opened while the unit remains pressurized.

8 25. Further, Defendant's representations about "safety" are not just 9 misleading, they are flatly wrong, and put innocent consumers like Plaintiff directly 10 in harm's way.

11 26. Economic, safer alternative designs were available that could have 12 prevented the Pressure Cooker's lid from being rotated and opened while pressurized.

13 27. Defendant knew or should have known that its pressure cookers
14 possessed defects that pose a serious safety risk to Plaintiff and the public.
15 Nevertheless, Defendant continues to ignore and/or conceal its knowledge of the 16 pressure cookers' defects from the general public and continues to generate a 17 substantial profit from the sale of its pressure cookers.

18 28. As a direct and proximate result of Defendant's intentional concealment
19 of such defects, its failure to warn consumers of such defects, its negligent
20 misrepresentations, its failure to remove a product with such defects from the stream
21 of commerce, and its negligent design of such products, Plaintiff used an unreasonably
22 dangerous pressure cooker, which resulted in significant and painful bodily injuries
23 upon Plaintiff's simple removal of the lid of the Pressure Cooker.

24 29. Consequently, the Plaintiff in this case seeks compensatory damages
25 resulting from the use of Defendant's pressure cooker as described above, which has 26 caused the Plaintiff to suffer from serious bodily injuries, medical expenses, lost wages,
27 physical pain, mental anguish, diminished enjoyment of life, and other damages.

1 FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

2 STRICT PRODUCTS LIABILITY

3 PLAINTIFF, FOR A FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION AGAINST INSTANT
4 BRANDS, INC., ALLEGES AS FOLLOWS:

5 30. Plaintiff incorporates by reference each preceding and succeeding
6 paragraph as though set forth fully at length herein.

7 31. At the time of Plaintiff's injuries, Defendant's pressure cookers were 8 defective and unreasonably dangerous for use by foreseeable consumers, including 9 Plaintiff.

10 32. Defendant's pressure cookers were in the same or substantially similar 11 condition as when they left the possession of the Defendant.

12 33. Plaintiff and her family did not misuse or materially alter the pressure 13 cooker.

14 34. The pressure cookers did not perform as safely as an ordinary consumer
15 would have expected them to perform when used in a reasonably foreseeable way.

16 35. Further, a reasonable person would conclude that the possibility and 17 serious of harm outweighs the burden or cost of making the pressure cookers safe.
18 Specifically:

19 a. The pressure cookers designed, manufactured, sold, and supplied by 20 Defendant were defectively designed and placed into the stream of 21 commerce in a defective and unreasonably dangerous condition for 22 consumers;

23 b. The seriousness of the potential burn injuries resulting from the product
24 drastically outweighs any benefit that could be derived from its normal,
25 intended use;

26 c. Defendant failed to properly market, design, manufacture, distribute,
27 supply, and sell the pressure cookers, despite having extensive knowledge
28 that the aforementioned injuries could and did occur;

- d. Defendant failed to warn and place adequate warnings and instructions on the pressure cookers;
- e. Defendant failed to adequately test the pressure cookers; and
- f. Defendant failed to market an economically feasible alternative design, despite the existence of economical, safer alternatives, that could have prevented the Plaintiff injuries and damages.

36. At the time of Plaintiff's injuries, Defendants' pressure cookers were defective and unreasonably dangerous for use by foreseeable consumers, including Plaintiff.

37. Defendant's actions and omissions were the direct and proximate cause of the Plaintiff's injuries and damages.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff demands judgment against Defendant for and punitive damages according to proof, together with interest, costs of suit, attorneys' fees, and all such other relief as the Court deems proper. Plaintiff reserves the right to amend the complaint to seek punitive damages if and when evidence or facts supporting such allegations are discovered.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
NEGLIGENT PRODUCTS LIABILITY

PLAINTIFF, FOR A SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION AGAINST INSTANT BRANDS, INC., ALLEGES AS FOLLOWS:

38. Plaintiff incorporates by reference each preceding and succeeding paragraph as though set forth fully at length herein.

39. Defendant had a duty of reasonable care to design, manufacture, market, and sell non-defective pressure cookers that are reasonably safe for its intended uses by consumers, such as Plaintiff and her family.

40. Defendant failed to exercise ordinary care in the manufacture, sale, warnings, quality assurance, quality control, distribution, advertising, promotion, sale

1 and marketing of its pressure cookers in that Defendant knew or should have known
2 that said pressure cookers created a high risk of unreasonable harm to the Plaintiff
3 and consumers alike.

4 41. Defendant was negligent in the design, manufacture, advertising,
5 warning, marketing and sale of its pressure cookers in that, among other things, it:

- 6 a. Failed to use due care in designing and manufacturing the pressure
7 cookers to avoid the aforementioned risks to individuals;
8 b. Placed an unsafe product into the stream of commerce;
9 c. Aggressively over-promoted and marketed its pressure cookers through 10 television, social media, and other advertising outlets; and 11 d. Were otherwise careless or negligent.

12 42. Despite the fact that Defendant knew or should have known that 13 consumers were able to remove the lid while the pressure cookers were still 14 pressurized, Defendant continued to market (and continue to do so) its pressure
15 cookers to the general public.

16 WHEREFORE, Plaintiff demands judgment against Defendant for and
17 punitive damages according to proof, together with interest, costs of suit, attorneys'
18 fees, and all such other relief as the Court deems proper. Plaintiff reserves the right
19 to amend the complaint to seek punitive damages if and when evidence or facts
20 supporting such allegations are discovered.

21 THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

22 BREACH OF EXPRESS WARRANTY

23 PLAINTIFF, FOR A THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION AGAINST INSTANT
24 BRANDS, INC., ALLEGES AS FOLLOWS:

25 43. Plaintiff incorporates by reference each preceding and succeeding
26 paragraph as though set forth fully at length herein.

27 44. Defendant expressly warranted that its pressure cookers were safe and 28 effective to members of the consuming public, including Plaintiff and her family.

1 Moreover, Defendant expressly warranted that the lid of the Pressure Cooker could
2 not be removed while the unit remained pressurized. Specifically:

- 3 a. “As a safety feature, the lid is locked and won’t open until the float valve
4 drops down.”¹⁶
- 5 b. “Instant Pot® has a safety feature to disable the cooker and the display
6 will flash "Lid" if the lid is not positioned correctly.”¹⁷
- 7 c. “Once the lid is locked, and the contents are under pressure, there’s no
8 way to open the pressure cooker.”¹⁸

9 45. Members of the consuming public, including consumers such as the 10 Plaintiff, were the intended third-party beneficiaries of the warranty.

11 46. Defendant marketed, promoted and sold its pressure cookers as a safe
12 product, complete with “safety measures.”

13 47. Defendant’s pressure cookers do not conform to these express
14 representations because the lid can be removed using normal force while the units
15 remain pressurized, despite the appearance that the pressure has been released,
16 making the pressure cookers not safe for use by consumers.

17 48. Defendant breached its express warranties in one or more of the following
18 ways:

- 19 a. The pressure cookers as designed, manufactured, sold and/or supplied by 20 the Defendant were defectively designed and placed into the stream of 21 commerce by Defendant in a defective and unreasonably dangerous
22 condition;
- 23 b. Defendant failed to warn and/or place adequate warnings and 24 instructions on its pressure cookers;

25
26
27 ¹⁶ Id. at pg. 9.

28 ¹⁷ Id. at 10.

¹⁸ See <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bVA2EqPf0s0> at 1:22 – 143.

- 1 c. Defendant failed to adequately test its pressure cookers; and
- 2 d. Defendant failed to provide timely and adequate post-marketing
- 3 warnings and instructions after they knew the risk of injury from its
- 4 pressure cookers.

5 49. Plaintiff used the pressure cooker with the reasonable expectation that it
6 was properly designed and manufactured, free from defects of any kind, and that it
7 was safe for its intended, foreseeable use of cooking.

8 50. Plaintiff's injuries were the direct and proximate result of Defendant's
9 breach of its express warranties.

10 WHEREFORE, Plaintiff demands judgment against Defendant for and
11 punitive damages according to proof, together with interest, costs of suit, attorneys'
12 fees, and all such other relief as the Court deems proper. Plaintiff reserves the right
13 to amend the complaint to seek punitive damages if and when evidence or facts
14 supporting such allegations are discovered.

15 FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

16 BREACH OF IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY

17 PLAINTIFF, FOR A FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION AGAINST INSTANT
18 BRANDS, INC., ALLEGES AS FOLLOWS:

19 51. Plaintiff incorporates by reference each preceding and succeeding
20 paragraph as though set forth fully at length herein.

21 52. At the time Defendant marketed, distributed and sold its pressure
22 cookers to the Plaintiff in this case, Defendant warranted that its pressure cookers
23 were merchantable and fit for the ordinary purposes for which they were intended.

24 53. Members of the consuming public, including consumers such as Plaintiff,
25 were intended third-party beneficiaries of the warranty.

26 54. Plaintiff reasonably relied on Defendant's representations that its 27 pressure cookers were a quick, effective and safe means of cooking.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff demands judgment against the Defendant as follows:

- A. That Plaintiff has a trial by jury on all of the claims and issues;
- B. That judgment be entered in favor of the Plaintiff and against Defendant on all of the aforementioned claims and issues;
- C. That Plaintiff recover all damages against Defendant, general damages and special damages, including economic and non-economic, to compensate the Plaintiff for her injuries and suffering sustained because of the use of the Defendants’ defective pressure cooker;
- D. That all costs be taxed against Defendant;
- E. That prejudgment interest be awarded according to proof;
- F. That Plaintiff be awarded attorney’s fees to the extent permissible under Federal and California law; and
- G. That this Court awards any other relief that it may deem equitable and just, or that may be available under the law of another forum to the extent the law of another forum is applied, including but not limited to all reliefs prayed for in this Complaint and in the foregoing Prayer for Relief.
